“It is easy to arouse hate with dire consequences.

I can only hope that the young people of today will have the courage to resist hatepropaganda.”

“I was forced to leave WIEN, where I was born, at 9 years of age. I said goodbye to my parents in June 1939 and never saw them again.

I had a good upbringing and education in England and worked for 25 years as a teacher.

I still feel sad about the fate of my parents, good people, who did not deserve to be killed. My father served in the austrian army in World War I.”
